6. "Some of the public utility services are working badly--for example, the local electric power station. There is hardly a night without a power cut, which normally lasts for several hours. This particularly affects the workers' sections of the city, Biskupin and Zalesie. The transport services are also inadaquate. Compared with the 900 streetcars before the war there are now only 300 running.

- 7. "There are only 8 movie houses with about 4,000 seats for 400,000 inhabitants. If sometimes an American, British or French film comes to Wroclaw, thousands of people queue up for the tickets. The Soviet films, which are shown almost exclusively, are not completely boycotted, although attendance is rather poor.
- and supervision authorities are set up. Quite recently, apart from the existing special control commission (Komisja Specjalna), which controls the prices, a new state trade inspectorate PIH (Panstwowa Inspekcja Handlowa) was established. It has the power to control the shops day and night."
